

ACOUSTICS

Each room is uniquely constructed to keep acoustics inside through vertical isolation from floor to floor. This design separates the floor system from the structural slab to create a complete enclosure not rigidly tied to the building's structure and ensures vibrations or noise from the outside make their way into recordings.